The European Union Prize for Contemporary Architecture – Mies van der Rohe Awards were initiated in 1987 after an agreement between the European Parliament and the Barcelona City Council, and is organised by the Fundació Mies van der Rohe and the European Commission. The Prize is awarded biennially to works completed within the previous two years. The principal objectives are to achieve a thorough understanding of the transformation of Europe's built environment; to recognize and commend excellence and innovation in the field of architecture; and to draw attention to the important contribution of European professionals in the development of new ideas with the undeniable support of clients and the involvement of those who will become the users of these places. For each edition, the jury chooses 40 works that represent these values and qualities, from which 5 are visited and 1 chosen as an architecture winner and another one as an emerging winner.
